

INSTITUTE FOR JUST COMMUNITIES

Advancing Knowledge, Skill Building, and Strategic Communication to Create Safe, Just, and Prosperous Communities.

The Institute for Just Communities is dedicated to improving the security and quality of life for and with communities, families, and youth with an emphasis on youth because they are powerful catalysts for change and can be positive forces in the creation of a safe, just, and prosperous world.

Combining the best in theory, research, and practice with the expertise each organization already possesses, IJC helps organizations develop practical strategies to address both short- and long-term “real world” issues, from board governance and organizational culture to creating and evaluating new initiatives.

IJC, a publisher of the renowned CYD Journal and leading voice in the CYD movement, offers a wide range of educational seminars and consulting services to meet your particular needs.

*For more information about the Institute for Just Communities contact
Della Hughes at 781.736.3609 or dhughes@brandeis.edu*